Tho property has long been improved as a summer resort. In 1910 a hotel and about a dozen cottages, situated in a recess at the base of the hill slopes, furnished accommodations for 100 people, while camp grounds and a supply store allowed provision for many more. There are two springs on the property, one being known as the Soda and Iron Spring, the other as the Magnesia Spring. The former is at the base of steep slopes about 125 yards south of the hotel. A basin has been formed at this spring by excavating beneath the base of a considerable deposit of lime carbonate. This basin is protected by a cement wall and by a roof, and yields a small flow of moderately carbonated water that is much appreciated for drinking. A small pool of only slightly carbonated water that collects...
